@ (SPreviously Unstarred Question 447 transferred from the 2vet July, 1989.

in the retail price of cement in some cities dunng April—June this year. However, the price increase eould be due to several reasons, like (a) increase in the cost of inputs like coa^ power, rail freight etc.;

(b) mai-git;.;! increase in excise duly, and

(c) seasonal rise in -the demand of ce ment, as it is the peak period for cons truction activities. With the onset of monsoon, however, prices have reportedly declined in some places. The price of cement at important consumption centres is attached. [See Appendix CLl, An nexure No. 93],

After withdrawal of control on price and distribution of cement< it is now readL ly available in the market and its pric$_s$ is determined by the play or market forces. The Development Commissioner for Cement Industry has been advised to keep a close watch on the price movement and monitor the same.
